SOME BACKGROUND DETAILS

- Germany was made up of different kingdoms, duchies, and Prussian provinces
- Within these areas, emigration records were usually kept on a county seat or district level of government
- In North American colonial times, naturalization most often meant the person was from a German-speaking country

SOME BACKGROUND DETAILS

- The first permanent German settlement in America was Germantown, Pennsylvania, which was settled in 1683.
- The Pennsylvania "Dutch" is a misnomer (Deutsch)
- They were not highly mobile when they arrived
- Germanic immigration is usually divided into two major groups: first wave and second wave. Sometimes called "boats"

FIRST WAVE

- Began with 17th century immigrants through the 18th century
- Mostly from southwestern parts of Modern Germany (Pfalz, Saarland, Baden, Württemberg, Alsace)
- Mostly extended families or identifiable groups (clusters), or serial migration (one followed by others)
- Often followed the Rhine River to the Netherlands and left from Rotterdam via London (hired by Royal Navy)

FIRST WAVE

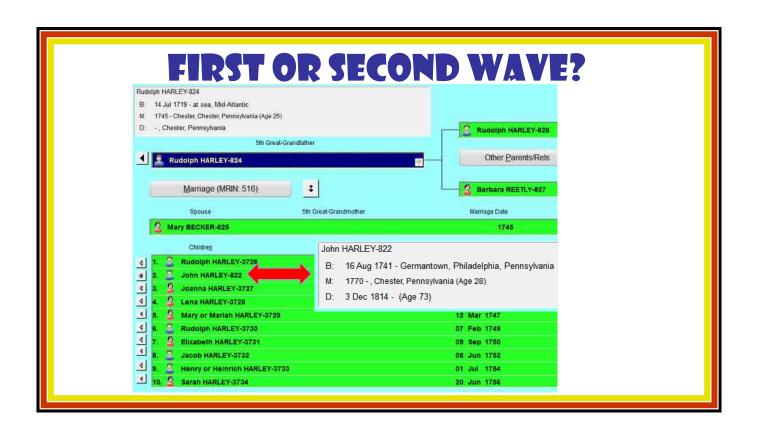

- Ended up in upstate New York or Pennsylvania
- About 80% immigrated through Philadelphia
- · Many were indentured
- Most came for economic opportunities
 - Lots of cheap land
 - Not yet driven by weariness of war
 - Unlikely to be nobles (inspite of "von" in surname)
- Some were escaping religious persecution
- Many fled illegally to escape "exit taxes"

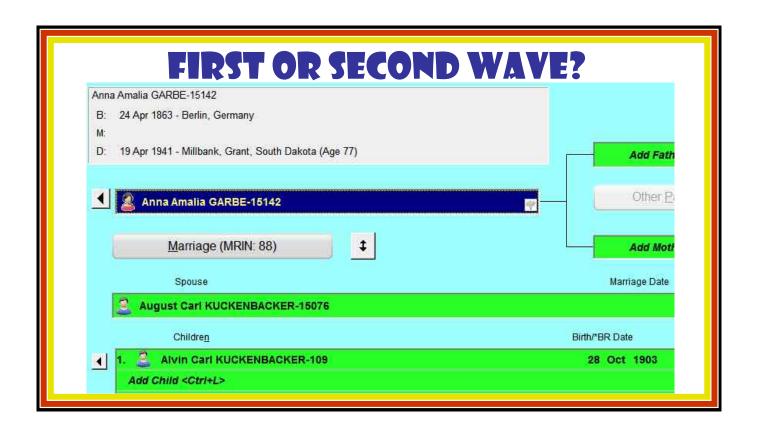

SECOND WAVE

- Covers 1800 to 1920 (over 5 million immigrants)
- Mostly individuals or single families
- From the north and east of German regions
- Migrated over other rivers to Bremerhaven and Hamburg
- Escaping the horrors of war

SECOND WAVE

- · Leap frogged over descendants of first wavers
- More industrial entrepreneurs
- Even split between Protestants and Roman Catholics
- Many fed up with political trends in Europe

WHERE TO START?

- To trace your ancestors in German records, you must know the town of birth.
- Even if you already have a place name, keep in mind that:
 - The jurisdiction of the place changed hands resulting in a different name
 - The place may have been swallowed up by the growth of a larger, neighboring city
 - Phonetic spelling can disguise the actual spelling
 - Place names are used multiple times throughout the region

DO THIS FIRST

- Scour your state-side information:
 - Validate your connection to a "German" ancestor
 - Identify the immigrant ancestor(s)
 - Identify the earliest known spelling of the surname
 - Avoid getting hung up on spelling variations
 - Look for some signatures

DO THIS FIRST

- Scour your state-side information:
 - Identify all family members (not just direct line)
 - Look for extended family members
 - Gather every possible scrap of information
 - Especially focus on immigration details
 - Watch for exceptions

NAMING PATTERNS

Oshkosh Daily Northwestern Oshkosh, Wisconsin October 20, 1897 Page 1 conviction and the death penalty

The majority have agreed since the beginning that there is an element of doubt in the case. The corpus delecti was not established with sufficient directness to convince them that Mrs. Lueigert is dead. Therefore they contend that if they possess a doubt they are in duty bound under the directions of the court to give Luetgert the benefit of it. For that reason alone it is said these jurors have cast their votes for an acquittal. Juror Harley is a German and the claim is made that he sympathizes with Luetgert on the score of nationality. Harley was once indicted in the criminal court in connection with the county commissioners boodle scandal of ten years ago. He was never tried, the case being dismissed by ex-Judge Longenecker who was then state's attorney.

Francis Daniel Pastorius, son of Melchior and Magdalena Pastorius, was born at Sommerhausen, September 26, 1651. His sponsors in baptism were Daniel Gering, Doctor of Law at Leghitz, and Franciscus Freyherr, of Limburg, from whom, of course, his Christian names were derived. According to custom these sponsors gave him presents, one of them conferring on him "a scarlet coat, a little sword, a hat with a feather and little white boots." "Thus," as Pastorius commented in later years, "making a fool of me in my tender years."

At the age of eleven he was sent to a gymnasium at Windheim, the teacher of which, Tobias Schumberg, knew no German, so that his pupils were obliged to converse with him in Latin. This indicates that his education in tongues, in the knowledge of which he afterwards excelled, was begun early. On July 31, 1668, he entered a school at Altdorf, and on August 11, 1670, he went to the University of Strasburg, where he com-

- The Hamburg Passenger Lists include the last foreign residence of people leaving from Hamburg. There are two lists:
 - The Direct Passenger List (1850 to 1934) lists those who left Hamburg and went directly to their destination.
 - The Indirect Passenger List (1850 to 1910) shows those who left Hamburg, went to another port, and then on to their destination. After 1910 the indirect list is included with the Direct Passenger List.

CHECK PASSENGER LISTS OR PORT RECORDS

- German emigrants usually left in groups from the same area of Germany.
 Be aware of the following information when searching your ancestor's passenger list or port record:
 - After finding your ancestor on a port record or passenger register, write down all the people on the same list
 - Check local census and other records to determine which people settled in the same area as your ancestor
 - Check for place of origin information on those who were on the same list
 - If your ancestor's surname is not unusual, but some of the others on the same list are, look those names up in the German surname books to determine where they originated
